

BOBBY BURNS BRINGS BRIGHTNESS TO BRAINY BOSTON

Bobby Burns in Boston. Governor Cutcliffe, of Massachusetts, unveiling a bronze statue of the poet, erected on Back Bay Fens by the local Burns' Memorial Association. Note the Highlander on the left paying tribute to "the immortal memory."

Good scouts in the open. A view of the Boy Scouts' winter camp at Warren, Ohio. The boys enjoy, to the full, winter sports, and good hunting in the woods around the camp. A heavy snow fall added to the attraction of the life in the open.

At anchor off sunny California. Photo shows the American Pacific Fleet riding at anchor near Venice, Cal. Fuel shortage does not worry the sailors so long as it leaves them a live port and good sport. Surf bathing makes up for lack of even fuel.

Battle-scarred buses back to "clivies." Owing to recent strikes, London could not build new buses, so urgently needed, and those used in France and Belgium during the war, are being renovated for use. Photo shows old "vets" in "hospital."

Distinguished soldier graduates of Trinity College, Dublin, who received degrees from Sir James H. Campbell. They have all served in the war, and most of them wore university gown over khaki uniforms. Dean Swift graduated from Trinity.

Pictureque fishermen of Belgium going into the tide. This method, however, does not supply the bulk of the fish on Belgian markets. A large fishing fleet, operating principally from Ostend, brings a quantities of fish (cod and herring) for home consumption.

FAMOUS SOLDIERS PAY A LAST TRIBUTE TO DEAD HERO

Admiral Jellicoe received by Secretary of the U. S. Navy Daniels in Washington. Photo shows Viscount John Jellicoe of the British navy, and hero of the Jutland battle, talking to Secretary Daniels.

A revolution in men's fashions. Some startling changes in men's evening clothes threaten to create at least a sensation in London society. Photo shows dinner jacket and breeches of party's hostesses with lace frills and gilt buttons.

A good "first" box. Some of the two hundred Bolsheviks captured in New England during the recent big "round-up," waiting in line for the boat to take them to Deer Island, Boston Harbor. They are being held there without bail, pending deportation.

Sir Douglas Haig pays tribute to a famous British soldier. Many distinguished soldiers and sailors attended the funeral of Sir Evelyn Wood, V.C. Lord Marshal Haig represented the king and other high officials of the crown were also represented.

Ship holds up 100-ton steel bridge. The steamer Tantalus, weighed down with eighty tons of steel, jammed into the huge steel bridge across Oakland Estuary (California), and blocked all traffic for hours.
